

Licensed Guide Exam Reference Sources

* Know Basic First Aid/CPR at the least. There are a few questions on the exam.

* Boy Scout Fieldbook [not the Handbook]

Get it at any Boy Scout equipment supplier.

This book will give you great information on a variety of outdoor subjects, arranged by topic. Take some time to read through this Fieldbook and be familiar with this general information.

* For DEC Information go to www.dec.ny.gov

Scroll down to Permits and Licenses>

Scroll down to Special Licenses>

Scroll down to Licensed Guide Program>

On right top side of page look at related links>

This will give you the needed forms and text of the Licensed Guide Law.

Be familiar with the law section.

* For DEC study material go to the DEC website: www.dec.ny.gov

At opening page scroll down to Publications, Forms, and Maps >

Scroll down to Publications> Scroll down to Outdoor Recreation Publications>

Scroll down to Hiking... Review all publications in this category.

 If you are taking the fishing or hunting portion of the exam be familiar with the DEC Regulation Guide for that activity. You will be given copies of the Guide at the exam and use them to answer the questions. DEC is not requiring you to memorize this material. They want to know you can find the specific regulation in the book to answer the question properly.

Take the above information and add it to your outdoor knowledge and skills you already have, the test will not be a problem for you.

Once you get your NYS Guide License we welcome you to join NYSOGA and help fellow guides promote safe and ethical guiding in New York State.
